UNION LABOR TO WIPE OUT THE FINE

Members in Omaha Give One Hour's Pay to Help Swell the Fund.

SAMUEL GOMPERS' BIRTHDAY

When the mighty arm of union labor all over this country works for one hour and gives the remuneration of that hour to the wiping out of a $300,000 fine, the $300,000 looks mighty "sick."

That is what labor unions did yesterday. It was Samuel Gompers' birthday and it was celebrated in this practical way.

The money will go to pay the fine and court costs against the Hatters' union of Danbury, Conn., a case that has become celebrated. It has been fought through the federal courts for more than a decade and was carried twice to the supreme court, and finally decided against the haters.

Their bank accounts and property have been attached.

Give One Hour's Pay.

Most of the unions in Omaha are contributing the one hour's pay. The carpenters are doing it and the painters. Omaha Stereotypers and Electrotypers' union No. 24 made its contribution to the cause a week ago.

Loewe & Co. of Danbury instituted the celebrated suit about twelve years ago. Many of the original litigants have been dead for years now, and the plaintiff firm is out of business. The suit has been kept alive by the American Anti-Boycott association and the creditors of Loewe & Co.

The funds that come from yesterday's united effort will be handled by Secretary Morrison of the American Federation of Labor and Martin Lawlor, secretary of the United Hatters of North America.

Oil Burner Man Insists Most of 'Em Working All Right

People interested in the oil burners for heating plants insist that The Bee's story the other day about householders going back to coal for their furnaces should have distinguished between the different kinds of oil burners on the market, and installed in different houses.

"There are at least three different kinds of oil burners which have been sold in Omaha," says an oil burner man, "and if one of them has not proved satisfactory, it is not fair to hold it up against all of them. Our concern has put in nearly 40 in the last two or three years, and those for special reasons which could be explained. We would know if any others failed to make good, because our burner is sold with a guarantee, so that we would be called on to take them out if they were to be discarded."

"It is true that the price of oil has gone up materially, but the amount of oil burned depends on the care of the fuel and burner, and this cold weather has made it necessary to shovel more coal in the coal furnace as well," and insists that the variation in oil burners is less than in coal burners.

"What we object to is that your article leads people to believe that no oil burner can be made a success, when there are hundreds of them right here in Omaha, and who will testify to the satisfaction and saving they have made by changing."

"Not—'not exactly in the room," said Mary, after an instant's hesitation. "There were people outside the door and—and my maid, who had been out, ran in during the excitement."

"Is your maid Janet or Jeannette Beauchamp?"

"Yes," Mary's voice was uneasy now, and her eyes met the frightened ones of the maid, who had risen with the apparent intention of leaving the room. But before she had reached the door the prosecutor had waved Mary from the stand and the clerk called loudly: "Janet Beauchamp!"

There was a startled cry of "Oh, mon Dieu!" and the Frenchwoman paused, wringing her hands, the center of attention.

With the receipts of three more days still to come this month, the highest previous monthly record is already smashed. The receipts to date for January are $67,022.

The highest previous monthly record was made in February, 1912, when the total receipts for the month reached $69,022.

POLLARD HERE PUSHING GOVERNORSHIP CAMPAIGN

Former Congressman E. M. Pollard of Nehawka, Neb., candidate for the republican nomination for governor of Nebraska, is in Omaha for a few days pushing his campaign. He is placing special emphasis on his advocacy of agricultural legislation while he was a member of congress.

Acid in Stomach Sours the Food Says Excess of Hydrochloric Acid is Cause of Indigestion.

A well-known authority states that stomach trouble and indigestion is nearly always due to acidity—acid stomach—and not, as most folks believe, from a lack of digestive juices. He states that an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach retards digestion and starts food fermentation, then our meals sour like garbage in a can, forming acid fluids and gases which inflame the stomach like a toy balloon. We then get that heavy, lumpy feeling in the chest, we eructate sour food, belch gas, or have heartburn, flatulence, water-brash, or nausea.

He tells us to lay aside all digestive aids and instead, get from any pharmacy four ounces of Jad Salts and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast while it is effervescent, and furthermore, to continue this for one week. While relief follows the first dose, it is important to neutralize the acidity, remove the gas-making mass, start the liver, stimulate the kidneys and thus promote a free flow of pure digestive juices.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and sodium phosphate. This harmless salts is used by thousands of people for stomach trouble with excellent results.—Advertisement.

Those who breakfast at 8 o'clock or later, lunch at 12 and have dinner at 6 are almost certain to be troubled with indigestion. They do not allow time for one meal to digest before taking another. Not less than five hours should elapse between meals. If you are troubled with indigestion correct your habits and take Chamberlain's Tablets, and you may reasonably hope for a quick recovery. These tablets strengthen the stomach and enable it to perform its functions naturally. Obtainable everywhere.—Advertisement.

The Strange Case of Mary Page

By Frederick Lewis, Author of "What Happened to Mary" Pictures by Essanay

(Copyright, 1915, by McClure Publications; SYNOPSIS.)

Mary Page, actress, is accused of the murder of James Pollock, and is defended by her lover, Philip Langdon. Pollock was intoxicated, a crook and tool of Pollock, was on the fire escape watching for Langdon.

She came home more willingly this time; it seemed somehow less of an ordeal, for she sensed that things had gone in her favor for a moment and she did not even flinch when, with a flourish, the district attorney took up the revolver (lying with the other exhibits in the case before the jury) and, thrusting it toward her, asked sharply:

"Have you ever seen this revolver before, Miss Page?"

"Yes, it belonged to Mr. Pollock."

"Was it in his possession on the night when he was murdered?"

"No," her voice broke now and fell. "It was in my possession then."

"And you had it at the Hotel Republic?"

"Yes."

"And was it your habit," the prosecutor's voice was satirically mocking, "was it your habit, Miss Page, to attend banquets with a revolver in your hand bag?"

Mary flushed angrily.

"The revolver was lying on my dressing table at the theater, she said, 'and I put it into my bag, intending to give it to Mr. Langdon, but—I forgot it.'"

"It was an unfortunate loss of memory for Mr. Pollock," said the attorney drily, with a glance at the jury. Then he abruptly waved the witness away, as though it would be a waste of time to question her further. Langdon halted her.

"Will you explain to the court," he cried, "how that revolver came into your possession, Miss Page?"

Gaining courage at his tone and the smile that accompanied his words, Mary turned toward the jury and in that beautifully modulated voice that had held so many audiences spell-bound, she told rapidly, but in detail, the story of Pollock's visit to her dressing room on the afternoon of that fatal day. She faltered a little over the recital of his abrupt proposal, and, woman-like, put in the world-old apology for his brutality by the simple statement:

"He was drunk, you know."

Then, vividly, her slender hands gesturing as her voice rising with poignant memories and pride of Langdon, she told of the latter's entry in response to her screams and of his battle with Pollock. Tensely silent, but with every nerve alert, the crowd listened as she described how Pollock had pulled the revolver out of his pocket only to drop it.

"He tried to pick it up again," she said, unconsciously visualizing for the picture of the struggling men, "but I crawled close and snatched it up before he could reach it."

She paused, and when she would have taken up the thread of her story again, Langdon's hand stopped her.

"That is all, thank you, Miss Page," he said, and the district attorney, surprised on his face, but with a new glint in his eyes, got quickly to his feet.

"I crave the court's permission to ask the witness one more question," he said, and as the judge waved assent he asked slowly, knowing the sensation his question would create:

"Miss Page, was there anyone else in the room at the time this struggle was going on?"

"Not—'not exactly in the room," said Mary, after an instant's hesitation. "There were people outside the door and—and my maid, who had been out, ran in during the excitement."

"Is your maid Janet or Jeannette Beauchamp?"

"Yes," Mary's voice was uneasy now, and her eyes met the frightened ones of the maid, who had risen with the apparent intention of leaving the room. But before she had reached the door the prosecutor had waved Mary from the stand and the clerk called loudly: "Janet Beauchamp!"

There was a startled cry of "Oh, mon Dieu!" and the Frenchwoman paused, wringing her hands, the center of attention.

For Chapped, Blotchy, Red or Wrinkled Skin

Do you realize that just beneath that coarse, rough or discolored complexion there is an exquisitely beautiful skin of youthful tint and delicacy? If you could only bring this complexion to the surface, discolorations, freckles, pimples, blotches, liver spots, moth patches, freckles, of course, disappear with the old skin. Nothing else will accomplish such wonderful results in so short a time.

Fine lines and even the deeper wrinkles often appear at this season. In such cases nothing is better than a face bath made by dissolving 1 oz. powdered saxolite in half pint of water. This is remarkably effective.—Advertisement.
